

After a resounding success last year, the National Stereoscopic Association's 47th Annual 3D-Con once again returns online for their second Virtual conference.

This year's convention will take place online from August 12th through 15th 2021, and will follow a similar format as last year. It will feature Workshops, Special Interest Group meetings, Stereo Theater, Art Gallery, Trade Fair, Guest Speakers, VR Worlds, and the "Stereoscopic Sessions" conference within-a-conference. Sessions can be attended via Zoom or YouTube, plus a special experience in Gather.town that allows users to mingle with other 3D enthusiasts.

Registration for the convention is free, with optional souvenir packets and discounted membership in the NSA available.

3D-Con is sponsored by the National Stereoscopic Association. The NSA is a non-profit organization that was founded in 1974 and has over 1000 members. The NSA publishes Stereo World Magazine, a magazine for 3D collectors and 3D photographers that has been in print since 1974. The magazine is exclusive to NSA members and publishes 6 issues published annually.

The National Stereoscopic Association's goals are: 1) to promote the research, collection, and use of vintage and contemporary stereoviews, stereo cameras, equipment, and related materials, 2) to promote the practice of stereo photography, 3) to encourage the use of stereoscopy in the fields of visual arts and technology and 4) to foster the appreciation of the stereograph as a visual historical record.
